Expelled from Germany in 1937, Rabbi Joachim Prinz served as the rabbi of Temple B'nai Abraham in Newark, NJ, where he became a leader of the civil rights movement. As an organizer of the 1963 March on Washington, he spoke to the crowd moments before Martin Luther King, Jr. delivered his "I Have A Dream" speech. The film, by Rachel Fisher and Rachel Pasternak, tells the story of Rabbi Prinz's life and legacy.

Free and Open to the Community

As a community event one week before the High Holy Days, we ask that all do their part to keep everyone safe. A K95 or KN95 mask will be required to attend.

The program, which begins at 8:45pm, will also be available on Zoom.
